PUBLIC NOTICE

16MARCH2020

Please Read the Following Carefully!

In response to the current public health concerns, the City of Port Lions would like to assure our community that we have no plans to interrupt essential services at this time. Refuse collection and operating the Water Treatment Plant do not involve direct public interaction. Fuel delivery is dependent upon Kizhuyak Oil Sales. As long as KOS remains open for business, we will continue to fulfill requests for fuel deliveries. So, unless new circumstances arise, these services will continue as scheduled.

However, all service requests must be made through the City office by telephone or email. PLEASE DO NOT contact the Public Works crew in person while they are working to request services or discuss City business. This is not a new policy, but we are now following it strictly for the protection of our employees.

We plan to have normal hours of operation for the City office, but please be advised this could change at any time. If it becomes necessary to close the office door, we will still have someone answering the telephone, taking messages and taking service orders during regular office hours of M-F from 8:30am – 2:30pm. An answering machine will be on when the office is closed and will be checked every morning.

According to State of Alaska mandate, the Jessie Wakefield Memorial Library will be closed to the public from March 17th through March 31st. Library employees will still be working to serve the public through telephone at 454-2012 during regular library hours.

We are committed to effectively communicating with you all as information changes. We will do so by telephone and posted updates at the PO, at City Hall, and on Facebook. Let's all practice safety, common sense and compassion for others today and every day.

Please do not hesitate to reach out to me at 454-2332 if you have any questions from 8:30am-2:30pm M-F. I am also available outside of office hours at 454-2478. Thank you!

Dorinda Kewan, Mayor
